Special thanks to continuing Supporting Members: Elaine & Glen Grell, Roberta Hoover Jenson, Romaine & Col. Leo McMahan, Peggy & Bill Miller, Ron Sutton, Debby Hoover Wycoff, and Judy & Wayne Yost.

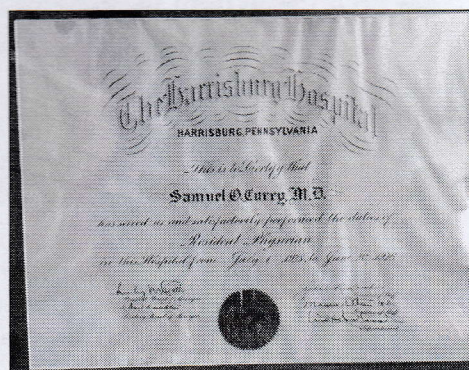

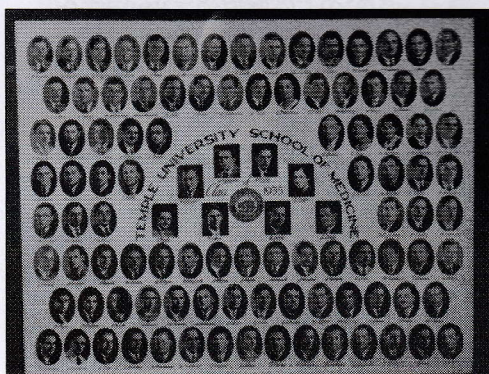

More special thanks to those of you who add an "extra" gift when sending in your dues: Ruth & Don Dietz, Dorothy Klemstine, Russell "Tuck" MacCachran, Sue & Gene Mahn, Peggy & Bill Miller, Jim O'Brien, and Milky Way. The Camp Hill Questors club donated $100 to close out their treasury.

We'd like to "recognize" and thank a good friend of our Historical Society (among others!) Doris Scheffey, is an artistic, creative framer of pictures of all sorts. Recently she donated her services and materials to restore June Fonti Curry's donation of Dr. Samuel O. Curry's medical diplomas and certificates. Six items in all! She is shown holding one of the vellum documents. Through the years of heat and humidity, vellum (sheepskin) wrinkles - not something that you can take an iron to! Doris was able to flatten them a remarkable amount, then clean their glass, add a small acid free mat to tidy up the edges, replace the backing with acid free materials, then return the documents into Dr. Curry's original frames.

You can find Doris "upstairs" at the Farmers' Market in Lemoyne, within the second-hand bookstore. (Great combination!)

Below are some photos of more of the "collection". Dr. Curry was 2nd row, 2nd person.

Temple University 1935 Medical Class! Samuel O. Curry. Harrisburg Hospital Residency.

There is a group of Camp Hill citizens who are seeking permission to maintain hens in coops on properties that are less than an acre. This matter has been going through the Zoning, Health, and Planning committees. Borough Council wants to study the matter thoroughly, and to hear every possible side of the issue. Back in the 1940's and 1950's, you may recall chickens in the Borough, including noisy roosters, but they are not going to be invited this time! Fresh eggs are the goal of today's hen aficionados.
